

Construction Law

Damon & Morey's construction attorneys stand ready to assist you whenever and wherever the need arises. Members of various local, state and national trade organizations, these attorneys are frequent lecturers at professional meetings and numerous in-house loss prevention seminars. Our specific industry experience includes:

- construction litigation and arbitration
- claims preparation
- lien recordation and enforcement
- trust fund claims
- bond claims
- contract drafting and review
- bid protests
- environmental issues
- labor issues
- court of claims matters
- real estate and financing.

We have the knowledge and experience necessary to advise and execute on all aspects of a project, including all phases of the construction process. We represent owners, developers, construction managers, contractors, subcontractors, material suppliers, architects and other design professionals. In addition to drafting and negotiating contracts, our attorneys also assist with the development of standardized forms.

Our clients also include those businesses and individuals involved in design and construction disputes - ranging in size from the defense or foreclosure of mechanics' lien claims to complex litigation involving design defects, construction failures and delays. Many of these cases involve sureties, insurers and lenders in addition to owners, contractors and design professionals.

Although it is our goal to avoid the necessity of litigation, our attorneys are prepared to handle all claims, lawsuits and issues by means of arbitration, mediation and litigation. Damon & Morey is prepared to defend architects, engineers and other design professionals in malpractice and contract litigation. Our firm's attorneys have also represented architects and engineers in major construction projects involving the removal of hazardous waste as well as more modest projects involving the renovation of existing office buildings.
